

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method for treating patients with spinal cord injury by administering germination activated Ganoderma lucidium spores (GASP) to the patients.

The GASP are sporoderm-broken. The GASP promote axon regeneration and improve 5 motor neuron survival in the injured spinal cord.

10